The Rules: By submitting, the artist warrants and represents that the work: is your original work, does not infringe upon the copyrights, trademarks, rights of privacy, publicity or other intellectual property or other rights of any person or entity, and that the content is within the bounds of the fair use doctrine. The artist further warrants that: he or she has obtained permission from any person whose name or likeness is used in the work and publication of the work via various media, including on the Web, will not infringe on any third-party rights. The artist indemnifies and holds harmless the DBA from any claims to the contrary, or from loss or damage of any kind arising from or in connection with the work and the competition.

Artists retain the copyright in their own work. By entering the competition, however, artists grant to the Denver Bar Association and The Docket a license for first North American publication in print, and for publication on the website dbadocket.org. Publication in either medium is in the sole discretion of the DBA. Artists also grant the DBA a license to grant reprint permission of any work that is published in the printed magazine or on the website dbadocket.org.

The competition is governed by the laws of the State of Colorado, and the artist consents to its exclusive jurisdiction for any causes or controversies arising in relation to this competition.

Submissions will be judged by the members of the Docket Committee and by Docket staff. In its sole discretion, the judges reserve the right not to accept any submission. The judges reserve the right not to award a prize in any or all categories, or to award an Honorable Mention in any and all categories.
